Investment environment

- European equities fell in September as higher oil prices and bond yields, along with concerns about inflation, weighed on investor sentiment.
- The European Central Bank (ECB) raised interest rates for the second time since the US/Iran conflict began and indicated that further monetary policy tightening may be needed.
- Eurozone annual inflation picked up to a slightly lower-than-predicted 3.2% in August from July's 2.9% increase, as energy prices remained elevated.
- Economic data was largely positive. The eurozone economy expanded by 0.6% in the second quarter, up from a previous estimate of a 0.4% increase and following no growth in the first quarter. The change was driven by an upgrade to Ireland's economic growth, while German expansion was also revised up. However, France's economy achieved no growth, which marked a downward revision.
- According to a 'flash' estimate, the composite Purchasing Managers' Index (PMI) rose to 53.1 in September – a three-and-a-half-year high – from 52.0 the prior month, with both the services and manufacturing sectors contributing.
- The euro weakened against both sterling and the US dollar during the month, hitting a 16-month low against the dollar, given expectations that the Federal Reserve (Fed) may continue to tighten borrowing conditions.

Portfolio review

Glanbia was among the main detractors from performance. The nutrition and supplements business faced pressure as concerns emerged regarding the sustainability of whey protein markets, where elevated pricing levels have prompted questions about future profitability. Ipsen's shares also came under pressure following the launch of a competing treatment that may affect one of the company's key pharmaceutical franchises. Elsewhere, shares in Poste Italiane weakened following its increased bid for Telecom Italia, where investors expressed concerns regarding the financing of the transaction.

Among the strongest contributors during the month was ING Group, which benefited from another period of robust earnings delivery. The company reported strong second-quarter results and subsequently upgraded guidance (forecasts) across a number of key metrics, including net interest income and return on tangible equity. Prysmian also performed strongly during the period. The cable manufacturer continued its positive momentum following another earnings upgrade, while investors welcomed the completion of the Atkore acquisition after receiving US antitrust clearance ahead of the expected timetable.

During the month, we added to a number of holdings where we believe share price weakness has created attractive long-term opportunities. The most notable additions included ASM International, where the shares weakened despite our assessment that the company retains attractive structural growth characteristics. We also increased positions in Heijmans, Wolters Kluwer, Atoss Software and Sopra Steria, reflecting our conviction in their underlying business quality and what we viewed as increasingly attractive valuations. In addition, we added to the position in LVMH, which we had initiated earlier in the quarter and where the risk-reward profile has become increasingly compelling in our view.

We also initiated a position in Fuchs, a manufacturer of specialist lubricant solutions serving a broad range of end markets, including automotive, mining, aerospace and industrial applications. We are attracted by the company's strong competitive position, resilient business model and exposure to several long-term growth themes. In particular, we see potential opportunities arising from increasing electrification trends, alongside growing demand for high-performance specialty lubricants in areas such as food processing, advanced manufacturing and other technically demanding industrial applications.

Manager outlook

Looking ahead, our outlook for European equities remains closely linked to developments in energy markets and the potential de-escalation of tensions in the Middle East. Encouragingly, the European economy has remained more resilient than many had anticipated. Economic growth has held up well, manufacturing activity is showing signs of recovery, and PMIs have moved back into expansionary territory. At the company level, earnings season has also supported a more positive outlook. While near-term market volatility may persist, we continue to identify attractive opportunities among high-quality businesses where we believe operational resilience, cash generation and long-term competitive advantages remain underappreciated by the market.

Please consult your local sales representative and/or financial adviser if you have any queries. This is a Luxembourg SICAV Fund, regulated by the Commission de Surveillance du Secteur Financier (CSSF). Cash balances and exposures are based on settled and unsettled trades as at the reporting date.

Investment policy

The Fund invests at least 75% of its assets in shares (equities) and equity-related securities of companies, of any size, in any industry, in Euroland Countries (i.e. countries having adopted the Euro as their national currency in the member state of the European Monetary Union). Companies will be incorporated in or having their principal business activities in Euroland Countries. The Fund may also invest in other assets including companies outside of Euroland Countries, cash and money market instruments. The Investment Manager may use derivatives (complex financial instruments) to reduce risk or to manage the Fund more efficiently. The Fund is actively managed with reference to the MSCI EMU Net Return EUR Index, which is broadly representative of the companies in which it may invest, as this forms the basis of the Fund's performance target and the level above which performance fees may be charged (if applicable). The Investment Manager has discretion to choose investments for the Fund with weightings different to the index or not in the index, but at times the Fund may hold investments similar to the index.

Investment strategy

The Fund has a bias towards "value" equities. The "value" approach emphasises investments in companies the relevant Investment Manager believes to be undervalued relative to their intrinsic worth. The investment process combines 'bottom-up' (company-level) analysis with a qualitative overview that helps the team to control risk while seeking to maximise performance. The process seeks to construct a portfolio of companies with established track records that are priced at a level that does not reflect their intrinsic value or future prospects.

Fund specific risks

Shares can lose value rapidly, and typically involve higher risks than bonds or money market instruments. The value of your investment may fall as a result. The Fund follows a value investment style that creates a bias towards certain types of companies. This may result in the Fund significantly underperforming or outperforming the wider market. High exposure to a particular country or geographical region carries a higher level of risk than a more broadly diversified portfolio. Derivatives may be used with the aim of reducing risk or managing the portfolio more efficiently. However, this introduces other risks, in particular, that a derivative counterparty may not meet its contractual obligations. If the Fund holds assets in currencies other than the base currency of the Fund, or you invest in a share/unit class of a different currency to the Fund (unless hedged, i.e. seeks to mitigate exchange rate movements between the share/unit class currency and the base currency of the Fund), the value of your investment may be impacted by changes in exchange rates. When the Fund, or a share/unit class, seeks to mitigate exchange rate movements of a currency relative to the base currency (hedge), the hedging strategy itself may positively or negatively impact the value of the Fund due to differences in short-term interest rates between the currencies. Securities could become hard to value or to sell at a desired time and price, especially in extreme market conditions when asset prices may be falling, increasing the risk of investment losses. Losses could be incurred if a counterparty became unwilling or unable to meet its obligations, or as a result of failure or delay in operational processes or the failure of a third party provider.

The summary risk indicator is a guide to the level of risk of this product compared to other products. It shows how likely it is that the product will lose money because of movements in the markets or because we are not able to pay you. We have classified this product as 4 out of 7, which is a medium risk class. The risk indicator assumes you keep the product for 5 years. This rates the potential losses from future performance at a medium level, and poor market conditions could impact our capacity to pay you.
