Chairman's Statement

Performance

The NAV total return over the first six months of the financial year increased by 5.6%, while the FTSE All-Share total return increased by 6.4%. It was a period in which large companies outperformed smaller companies due to general economic concerns and uncertainty over Brexit. Over 5 years or more the Company has a strong record against the benchmark, as illustrated in the following table:

	1 yr %	3 yrs %	5 yrs %	10 yrs %
NAV (total return)	0.4	32.8	42.5	361.1
FTSE All-Share (total return)	2.6	33.3	35.2	167.9
Outperformance (+)/ Underperformance (-)	-2.2	-0.5	+7.3	+193.2

The share price remained on a discount to NAV moving from 16.1% to 18.3% over the period.

Gearing

During the period the Fund Managers used the general weakness in equity prices inspired by uncertainty over the economy to refresh the portfolio by adding four new stocks. The Company was a net buyer of equities and the gearing moved up to 14.0% from 6.7% at the start of the period.

Earnings and Dividend

The revenue return in the period was £1,061,000, compared with £797,000 in the corresponding period last year. An interim dividend of 7.0 pence per ordinary share (2018: 6.5 pence) has been declared payable on 20 September 2019 to shareholders on the register of the Company on 16 August 2019. A noticeable feature of the half year was the level of income achieved by stock lending. This was £224,000 over the period compared to £nil over the corresponding period last year and £49,000 for the year ended 31 October 2018. Stock lending is a closely monitored activity with a cap on the amount of stock that can be lent. The Board considers that it represents low risk to the portfolio and provides useful income.

Share Capital

Since the year end, 99,670 ordinary shares have been bought back, under the authority given by shareholders at the Company's Annual General Meeting, at an average price of 937p each. The shares are being held in treasury. We purchased these shares in order to enhance NAV marginally, it did this by 0.2%, at a time when the underlying shares in the portfolio appeared particularly oversold. We will continue to be opportunistic in our approach to buybacks with the objective of increasing the NAV rather than reducing the discount, although that may be a secondary consequence. The Board believes that the discount is more likely to be reduced over time by strong investment performance and the marketing of the strengths of the Company.

Outlook

The UK economy continues to grow but at a subdued pace. This is in spite of the macroeconomic uncertainties, in particular the fear that Brexit would be detrimental for UK economic growth. Some of this is priced into UK equity prices and accounts for the fall of Sterling and the underperformance of the UK markets since the referendum. A continuation of open trade across borders within Europe would be positive. There are UK companies that are trading on reasonable valuations and yet have strong growth prospects because of dynamic management teams, and such companies remain the focus of the portfolio.

Fund Managers' Report

Review

The net asset value of the portfolio grew 5.6% in the six months to the end of April, while the benchmark FTSE All-Share rose 6.4% (both on a total return basis).

It was a difficult period for AIM which, having had a strong start to 2018, fell materially in the fourth quarter (-21.5%) before recovering and finishing virtually unchanged over the six months. As at the end of April, 58% of the portfolio is invested on AIM. While it is disappointing to be underperforming our benchmark the FTSE All-Share over the period, part of what we are trying to achieve is providing exposure to high growth companies on AIM but without the heightened volatility that was particularly evident in the fourth quarter. In this context we are pleased to have outperformed the AIM All-Share Index and continue to see excellent value in the underlying portfolio.

Portfolio Attribution

The largest contributor to performance over the six months was RWS Holdings, which provides specialist translation services for sectors such as pharmaceuticals. As it is one of the largest companies in the markets that it operates in, it has a significant scale advantage. For this reason it generates consistently good operating margins and is also generating double digit organic growth. While it has performed well and now trades on a higher valuation, we are happy to maintain the current position and it sits within the 'compounders' sleeve of excellent quality companies within the portfolio.

The largest detractor from performance was Zoo Digital, which provides dubbing and subtitling services for content producers such as Netflix and Disney. The key advantage of Zoo Digital versus traditional studios is that it allows freelance actors to record from home using Zoo's software. This provides content producers with quicker, but still good quality, translations that allow them to transmit content more quickly across the globe. The reason for the poor share price performance during the period was that legacy work that Zoo used to undertake in the DVD market has rolled over more steeply than expected. Their higher value dubbing work continues to grow well and their customer base is successfully expanding. The position was added to over the period as in our view the current valuation looks compelling and the investment thesis of substantially growing dubbing revenue has not changed. As at 17 June 2019, the share price since the period end had recovered by 16.4%.

Portfolio Activity

Having brought the gearing down in summer last year we used the fourth quarter and beginning of 2019 to be net buyers and as a result the gearing rose back to 14.0%. This net buying included adding to holdings that we had previously reduced earlier in 2018 having de-rated substantially. Examples of this included e-learning services provider Learning Technologies and Senior, an engineer of predominantly aerospace components (which was sold in entirety in early 2018 and subsequently repurchased).

Learning Technologies share price since first purchase (pence)

The largest purchase during the period was RBS. This is a new holding in the portfolio, and as at the end of April was 1.1%. The legacy issues of RBS (such as PPI) are largely resolved, while the balance sheet has been significantly strengthened such that it has now material excess capital that we think is likely to be returned to shareholders via a series of special dividends and share buybacks.

The largest individual sale during the period was Faroe Petroleum, which received a cash offer at a significant premium to the undisturbed share price from DNO, a Norwegian oil & gas company. It is encouraging to see takeover interest returning in the UK market and another of the holdings, Dairy Crest, was taken over by a Canadian company who wished to gain access to some of their established brands, such as Cathedral City.

Outlook

Following a difficult fourth quarter of 2018, valuations particularly within AIM have been re-set and are now at what, in our view, are attractive levels. There is heightened political and macro-economic uncertainty but our focus as fund managers remains on finding relatively unknown but fast growing smaller companies and larger companies in the UK where sentiment has become overly pessimistic.
